Once upon a time a man and his wife found a little boy in a field. As they didn't have any children, they decided to adopt him. They called him Jack.

People, living in that place couldn't feel anything. They were like robots and did only the things that had been programmed in their brains.

But Jack had emotions: he could love, cry and laugh. Nobody knew that because it could be dangerous for Jack. So he grew among emotionless people.

The night before he was 18, he saw a dream. He saw a man and a woman who claimed that they were his real parents. They explained to him that robots had stolen him to their planet. His parents had tried to find the ways to save him but they failed.

But there was one chance to return Jack. This chance was like that: when Jack was 18, at 6 pm he had to be in the field where he had been found. He had to jump over the fence and run to the field where a spaceship would take him to his planet. If Jack was 5 seconds late, or earlier, nothing would happen.

When Jack woke up, he found a piece of paper with the words: "don't miss your chance, son". Jack understood that the dream was true.

Jack knew where the fence he needed was so at 5.50 p.m. he ran to the field, found the fence and got over it to meet the new life.
