Uninvited Guest

Running was his everything. When he first saw a punting competition on TV at the age of five he understood - ~~it~~ it was his destiny. At first it was only participation in school competitions, but after a few years of daily training ~~he started~~ and life with an only idea to become the best he started training professionally. He came third in his first competition, but he didn't even think about giving up. So ~~after a few years~~ ~~of~~ he started giving his everything to achieve the goal of his life. Eventually everyone in his city knew about a budding star-runner James Hanson.

With the success in sport came the attention of girls. There were hundreds of requests to become friends on his facebook page. However, he didn't like these few-girls. He was always searching for the only one even though he was really a handsome man.

One day it was James' best friend Andrew's birthday. Andrew was turning eighteen. A lot of people were invited. The music was loud, everyone was having fun. James was talking to his friends when ~~the~~ came in. Suddenly his heart started beating quickly and he had the same feeling that he had at the age of five. Now it was that girl. She was his destiny.

On that party they became friends. In a few weeks they started going out together. She was a professional gymnast so they went well together. Once James decided to make a surprise for Kate. He bought a bouquet of her favourite flowers and wanted to get in her house secretly with those flowers in his hands.

That night James was standing near Kate's house. He knew the address but had never been into the house. He easily got over the fence, started approaching the house when suddenly heard a sound of a shot above his head. It was Kate's father! He thought James was a thief! Instinctively James dropped the flowers on the ground and ~~at that~~ ^{started running} away as fast as he could, he even managed to jump over the fence very fast.

The moral is always call your friends before coming at their house at night!
