Great Redemption

— Hey, Jimmy! Who is in this picture? Why is he running away and from whom? — asked me Lucy, looking through our album. I took a look on the photo and smiled: “Yeah, that was a funny story.”

When my brother Jack and I were 16-year-olds, our parents decided we should have spent our summer holidays with our Grammy. I thought it would be fun to take care of domestic animals, breathe in fresh countryside air. Besides, I had many childhood friends there. Jack was absolutely disappointed. He was going to take part in an annual bike race and ~~that~~ <sup>his</sup> his dreams were ruined.

For him, it seemed to be three boring months.

However, he never thought of giving up. So I expected that he would perform something unusual and outstanding. Well, I was right.

While our grandmother was sleeping, Jack was turning the house upside down. He redecorated Grammy's light room into a modern one, installed a computer and made dinner of grandmother's favourite ~~hen~~ hen. Moreover, Jack painted her face while she was still sleeping on the balcony.

You can easily imagine Grammy's anger when she woke up and looked in the mirror.

Luckily, I was taking pictures that day and depicted her screaming and running ~~at~~ ~~to~~ around the house looking for Jack. When she finally found him, Grammy started beating him with a mop. I witnessed all the scene and took this photo of Jack jumping over the obstacle and running away from Grammy. That was amazing!
