2017 fairytale

In our school we have a tradition: every ~~year~~ new year seniors write the plot and stage the play, which is usually new-year-themed and refers to Russian folklore or fairytales. This year it was the turn for our class to create a new fairytale. In October we all worked hard on writing a plot, we wanted this play (which happens to be the last one) to be the most memorable one; so we've done our best trying to make it modern, captivating and educational at the same time. In November we found leading actors and so called "background dancers". But

December... that's what was truly terrific! I had one of the leading roles (queen) and I<sup>130</sup> also had to sew costumes, make decorations and find materials. Knowing it was the end of the semester I asked my friend, if she could make a cheat sheet for me and, thankfully, she agreed. There were only five of us, who were continuously working with detention on 170(1) ~~and~~ costumes and decorations for 21 scenes. Still, there was a lot of chances in the room where we were working, who were just playing truant. It was so unfair!

But in the end none of that mattered anymore. When I came out on stage to hear the applause, all the effort I put into that play seemed to immediately pay off. 2017 fairytale at our school has become a wonderful memory, which I am going to cherish forever.
