April Fool.

It happened a couple of years ago when I was probably at 9 or 10 grade. The 1 of April started quite usual with a shower and a tasty breakfast. Then my dad drove me to school and said his normal phrase: 'Good luck!' I replied by saying that everything would be okay and he didn't have to worry too much about me.

I entered ~~the~~ classroom and it turned out that none was present except me. I felt nervous and confused. My teacher said that everybody was ill and had to deal with a tedious routine alone. After 10 minutes of the lesson suddenly all my friends rushed into the room screaming, "April Fool!". I felt great relief and desertion and said that it was a terrible joke.

After all that my normal school day continued in its usual pace, not without some cheat sheeting and playing truant by some of my naughty classmates. However, everybody was used to it, thus that behaviour was not a pain in the neck for us. Besides, I was really disenchanted because none seemed to know that it was my birthday so I choose not to interact with those stupid olince people any longer. Fortunately, that was another mischievous trick and during our break I received lots of unexpected presents from my pals. I was on cloud nine.

At that previous moment of happiness I woke up in my bed and realized that this story was completely made up unthinkingly.
