The importance of trust

It was an ordinary spring day for everyone except the students of Alice Diana's class because today they had the big biology test. Diana was thinking about it ^{that day} while she was walking to school. She was awfully scared of the test even though she has studied for it.

Once she reached the school entrance she saw her friend, Kate, who also admitted that she ~~was~~ was nervous about the test too.

After some lessons the time for the biology test finally came. The class has almost finished writing it when the teacher came up to Kate and pointed at the cheat sheet which was lying near Kate's fool.

'I will have to inform the principle about it,' the teacher said.

'But it's not mine,' Kate exclaimed.

Everyone thought that Kate decided to play truant and lie to the teacher. Diana thought so too, despite them being friends.

After the lesson Kate went to the principle. Diana has overheard that Kate got a detention. Diana ~~he~~ didn't talk to Kate for the rest of the day.

But at the end of the day, when everybody was about to go home, the principle came into class and apologised to Kate. The whole situation turned out to be a terrific mistake. The cheat sheet actually belonged to someone from the class that was writing the same test earlier. When he heard that an innocent person got blamed for his mistake, he went straight to the principle and admitted everything.

When Diana heard all that she realised what a fool she was.

'Kate, I'm so sorry. I should've trusted you more.

I promise it won't happen again,' cried Diana.

Kate accepted her apology as she was a very kind girl.

That day Diana learnt a valuable lesson of trusting in your friends.
