A Valuable Lesson

Once I and my friend, Roma, were invited to the project contest held by an English-language club at our school. We prepared for it for such a long time. By the day of the project competition we had already worked out a terrific project but it was uncanny.

The contest day came. The competition was held outside the school. We went to the school ground and took our seats. The weather was not very good on that day. It was very cloudy.

I was a bit nervous that the organizers would put off the contest. So I asked Roma "what do you think about it? Are you worried?" "No, and you should not worry either because the weather forecast said it would not rain" he answered. That calmed me down. However we were really anxious about our project performance, so we asked to be the last to present it.

Surprisingly the presentations of the other competitors were not very good. We had all the chances to win. Finally our turn came. But at that very moment it started raining heavily. People started shuffling away. The ground was wet and some people fell and got hurt.

We were terribly angry as we had missed our opportunity to present the project. We should have believed in ourselves more. We might have won. We got home in one piece: cold, drenched but having learnt an important lesson.
