A holiday in the country.

My brother George and I were a sort of children parents called "difficult". However, one day changed everything.

That morning we were going on a holiday in the Uncanny valley. Honestly, I was really delighted as I had been looking forward to this trip for weeks. George seemed to be even more excited than I.

When we finally reached the valley, I stood with my mouth open: so terrific the place was. "Isn't the view magnificent?" - wondered George. I nodded.

We spent about four hours there. It seemed as if it was going to start raining, so my mother shouted: "It's time to go, boys. We need to move, unless you want to get wet!" But George ^{we} wouldn't go. ~~There~~ ~~was~~ ~~nothing~~ We were chasing a squirrel and didn't even notice how we found ourselves in a dark forest. Whines ran on my spine. Suddenly, heavy raindrops began falling. I looked at George. He seemed to be as scared as I was. "I guess, we have to go" - I said. And we set off.

In thirty-minutes time we reached our parents. Mother ran at us and hugged. "Don't you ever run away like that. I thought I had lost you!" As he said that, tears appeared on her eyes.

We got back home in one piece: cold, drenched, but having learned an important lesson.
