Limitation and Perspectives

Serendipity to expand callow student's horizon
 : difficulty in research progress without undesigned interaction

Unable to collect research data
 : the cancellation of a questionnaire survey due to school closures

Mental care
 as an international student : mental pressure that I cannot visit my home country

Education in a Time of Pandemic Through the Eyes of Graduate Students: Challenges and Perspectives

大学院生の目からみるパンデミック時の教育の課題

Session 1: Graduate Students as Learners

- The obstacles we ourselves have faced, how we have tried to overcome them, and new perspectives gained through such experiences

Session 2: Graduate Students as Researchers in Education Sciences

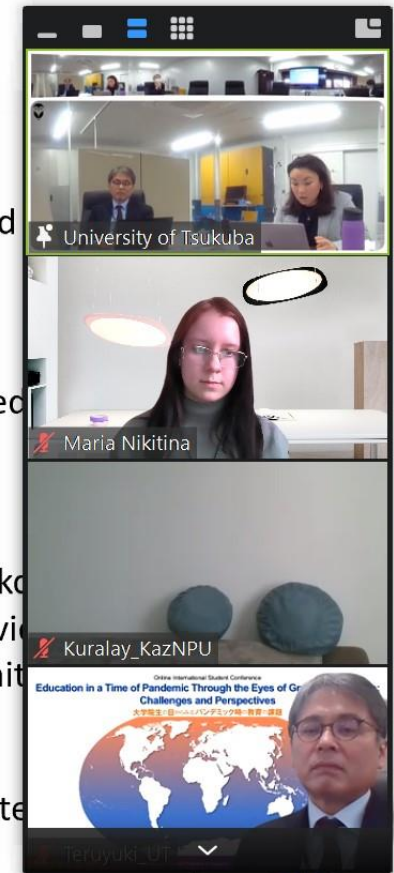

- The obstacles we have seen in primary and secondary schools, how they have tried to overcome them, and lessons and new perspectives for the schools

Session 3: Graduate Students as Citizens/ Community Members

- The problems and sudden changes we have seen in the communities (such as lockdown and other stay-at-home restrictions, wealth disparity, regional disparity, digital divide) and how we have overcome them, and lessons and new perspectives for the communities

Session 4: Graduate Students as Future Educators

- Creative and innovative proposals for making use of pandemic experience for better education programs at schools, especially at universities

Discussion Points

1. As far as not many people (even close relationships) are allowed to gather, how do you feel about this situation?
2. What negative and positive points do you see in online studying and classes?
3. Was there any regional disparity in the country and how government dealt with that?
