Last summer, when I was staying at my dacha, my friends and I decided to go fishing. My mother was against the idea, however. "A storm is coming", she warned. The weather was terrific, so we didn't listen to her and went anyways.

The river was about a twenty minute walk from my house, so we got to our favorite spot pretty soon. Everything seemed to work out perfectly – we were in a good mood, the sun was shining and you could even see the fish scuttling about in the water. It took us ~~a few~~ ^{some} time to set up, and ~~then~~ ^{we} started.

We were very lucky – we managed to reel in five fishes in less than thirty minutes! We were so excited that we barely noticed anything except the fishing line. Suddenly, an uncanny feeling came upon me. "Is it just me, or did it get colder?" I asked. This is when it started raining.

It took us a while to realise what was going on. Finally, we noticed the huge dark cloud heading our way and started quickly gathering our stuff. The rain was already pouring and the first strike of lightning flashed nearby when we started off home.

We ran as fast as we could. The road was already muddy, and occasionally one of us would fall. We lost some of our things on the way. We got back home in one piece: cold, drenched, but having learnt an important lesson.
