It was a hot sunny day in the middle of July when my dad came out with this idea. 'Let's go camping!' he said excitedly. We had nothing, but to agree.

We packed our bags, loaded them into the car and started our journey. When we got to the place, everything was perfect. We were happy, excited and enjoying our little get out, not knowing how terrific it'd become. At first, it started to rain, but we thought that our tent would be a perfect shelter. However, in a few hours the weather turned scuttling: heavy rain and even lightning. 'We must go home now!' mum said and we got into the car. I was completely terrified and scared at that moment.

We were driving, when we heard a cracking noise. A tree fell on the road! 'We can work it out, trust me!' said my dad, but I'm not sure he believed in it himself. Somehow we managed to push the tree out of our way, but it wasn't the end. We ran out of petrol! Fortunately, we were only a few kilometres away from a petrol station. We pushed our car for at least an hour and so were all exhausted. 'Next time even a raindrop falls and we return!' I said. In the end, we got back home in one piece: cold, drenched, but having learnt an important lesson.
